FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Free Public Presentation on a New and Different Kind of Health Care for Older Adults

KAHULUI, Hawaii August 18, 2009 – Maui PACE will be hosting a free informational session for individuals who would like to learn more about Maui PACE, an all-inclusive health care program for older adults, on Wednesday, September 2nd, from 5 – 6:30 p.m. at the J. Walter Cameron Center auditorium in Wailuku. Maui PACE is a health care program that supports individuals' desire to remain in their own homes and community for as long as possible.

Maui PACE services are individualized to meet client needs and include medical care, prescription medications, hospitalization, adult day health services, home health care, transportation and more. Maui PACE may be a health care solution for individuals who are age 55 or older, currently living safely in the community, qualify for nursing home level of care, and reside within the Maui PACE service area. Participants in Maui PACE do not pay any co-payments or deductibles. In some cases, depending on financial situation and eligibility for Medicare and Medicaid, there may be a monthly cost share.

Cheryl Adolpho of Maui PACE will be speaking about the program and will be able to answer any questions. Born and raised on Maui, Adolpho is a graduate of Baldwin High School and the University of Washington where she received her Bachelor of Arts degree in social work. As a former caregiver for her elderly father, she knows first hand how difficult it can be and the amount of support needed. Prior to joining Hale Makua Health Services Adolpho worked with Maui Family Support Services, Hawaii State Department of Health, St. Francis Medical Center Renal Institute of the Pacific, and Community Clinic of Maui, to name just a few.

Warren F. Wong, M.D., Hale Makua's Medical Director and Maui PACE physician, will also be speaking about the pros and cons of various senior living environments, and will be available after the Maui PACE presentation to address any questions that the public may have. Dr. Wong previously worked in San Francisco at On Lok, which is the ground-breaking model of coordinated service delivery and innovative financing that PACE is based on. Dr. Wong specializes in Geriatric Medicine, and has been practicing medicine in Hawaii for over 28 years. He attended medical school at the University of California, Davis, and performed his residencies at Mount Zion Medical Center of the University of California in San Francisco and the University of Hawaii's John A Burns School of Medicine. Dr. Wong is also a core faculty member of the Department of Geriatricians at the University of Hawaii where he serves as the Clinical Professor of Geriatric Medicine Kaiser Permanente. His areas of interest include dementia and models of population management.
